Canada won the all-round championship of the A. A. U. yesterday afternoon at Knickerbooker Field, Bayonne, and broke all previous records with a score of 6,360% points out of a possible 10,000. This makes the second of the seventeen National championships held in which the honors have been taken by a man from across the border. W. R. Thomnson of Montreal won the initial event from Malcolm W. Ford and A. A. Jordan when the N. A. A. A. A. held sway in 1884, but in a second attempt in 1887 the Mon-treal athletic was defeated handily by Jordan. The field yesterday was a fairly representative one, as it included Ellery H. Clark of the Boston A. A., who won the event in 1887 and established a new record of 6.244% points; E. C. White of Cohocton, N. Y., who won in 1898, under the colors of Cornell University, with 5.243 points, and Dan Reuss of the Knickerbocker A. C., one of the best all-round performers in the metropolitan district. Reuss arrived late and the competition was begun without him, but he was allowed in the opening events, and his points computed from the time events, and his points computed from the time events, and his points computed from the time and performances made.

Clark was the favorite on the strength of his record performance, and matters looked to be going his way when he won the 100-yard dash, which was the first event decided, by a foot, which was the first event decided, by a foot, which was the first event decided, by a foot with the hot, which he won with 41 feet 54 inches, the hot, which he won with 41 feet 54 inches, far above the average. In his winning try Gilfar above the average. In his winning try Gilfar above the average. In his winning try Gilfar above the average in the first declared foul, but an investigation proved that the dividing line, called for by the rules, had not been marked on the ground. In the high jump Gill made the highest percentage of the day. When the bar reached 5 feet 11½ inches he cleared it at the first attempt, and confidently said: "That will do." He did not try to make a higher mark. Clark pulled up a bit in throwing the hammer and the hair-mile walk, in both of which he led Gill. The Canadian, however, drew further away in the pole vault and 120-yari hurdle race.

The final discomfure of the record-holder occurred in throwing the 56-pound weight. Gill hurled the heavy missile 27 feet 7½ inches. In his anxiety to exceed these figures Clark encroached on the ring space and fouled on each of his three attempts. This gave him a zero and put him hopelessly out of the competition, so far as first place went. The New Englander did not compete in the two remaining events.

petition, so far as first place went. The New Englander did not compete in the two remaining events.

When the one-mile run, the last event on the programme, began the officials had not corrected an error made in computing Gill's points in the disputed shot-put. He was informed that he would have to cover the mile in 6 minutes 2 seconds in order to beat the record. Though badly plaved out in the last quarter of a mile, the Canadian persevered pluckily and crossed the line nearly 100 yards behind the winner in 5 minutes 53 2-5 seconds. The mistake of 85 points in the shot-putting figures, however, placed him easily ahead of the previous record.

The winner comes of an athletic family. He is a cousin of George R. Gray, holder of the American record for putting the 16-pound shot, and was born at Coldwater. Ont. Gill is 23 years old, 6 feet 1 inch tall and weighs 165 pounds. The stamina of the competitors may be judged from the fact that in spite of a five minutes intermission, necessitated by a rainstorm, the programme was completed in two hours and a half. The proceedings were enlivened from a spectacular standpoint by a series of handicap events decided on the track, in which close contests and fast time were the rule. Swimming events took place on the bay in the morning, and the sport ended with a baseball game between the home team and the New York A. C. Summaries follow:

HOW CURTIS AND ORMEBBE DIED.

Prof. Parker Says They Might Have Beet Saved if They Had Turned Back. The bodies of William B. Curtis and Allan Ormsbee, the two athletes who were frozen to death on Mount Washington last Saturday, arrived at the Grand Central Depot at 11:35 o'clock yesterday morning. They were in charge of Prof. H. C. Parker and F. B. Ilgen, members of the Fresh Air Club, who were on the mountain when the men died. The party was expected at 8.80 o'clock, and the following members of the Fresh Air Club were on hand at that time to receive the remains of their old comrades:

H. E. Buermeyer, Mortimer Bishop, Samuel J. Montgomery, Prof. Hallock of Columbia University, W. C. Andrews H. C. Wade, Louis Legten, L. R. Sharp, Benjamin F. Seaver, Harrington Putnam, J. Prochaska, W. C. Taylor and Robert Edmiston. Allan I. Ormsbee, the father, and Alexander

Ormsbee, the brother of Allan Ormsbee were also at the depot when a telegram from Mr. Ilgen announced that they would not arrive for three hours. When the train came in Ilgen and Parker were immediately surrounded by the group who were in waiting, anxious to hear particulars of the manner in which the two intrepid climbers met their death. Ormsbee's father stood bareheaded, and with tears in his eyes listened to the details recounted by the survivors of the party. Prof. H. C. Parker of Columbia University, a slightly built man with a nervous manner, who has climbed nearly all the formidable mountains of the Eastern States and many in Canada, said that the story as published in THE SUN yesterday of the incidents in connection with the sad event was sub stantially correct. To a reporter of THE SUN he said:

"We had no feeling of uneasiness regarding Curtis and Ormsbee. When they did not arrive at the Summit House as expected on Saturday night, we believed that they had either abandoned the trip on perceiving the storm raging in the mountain, or turned back after making in the mountain, or turned back after making the attempt. Two guides went down the mountain that morning and we concluded that they had met Curtis and Ormsbee and warned them of the danger in making the ascent in the teeth of the storm. We afterward heard that this wasse, but that in spite of the advice the pair determined to push on.

"As we had no idea that the men had met with any disaster there was no organized attempt to succor them. Louis F. Cutter of Winchester, the member of the Appalachian Mountain Club, was simply out for a stroll, when about two miles down the trail he stumbled on the body of Mr. Curtis, lying face downward on the rocky path. There was a cut on his temple, but otherwise he was not bruised. Mr. Cutter took a card out of his pocket and pinned it to the clothes with the following note:

Monday, July 2, 500. I found this man about

The search and all their return to the Summit.

Tombee and will then return to the Summit.

Tombee and will then return to the Summit.

Tombee and will then return to the Summit.

Tombee. After returning he gave to combee. After returning he gave to combee. After returning he gave to combee. After returning he gave to combee and after numing in the vicinity of the Summit for some time I came across the body of Ornabee. He was also lying I cace downward, and was some distance off the Crawford bridle path, but was less than a quarter of a mile from the summit for some time I came across the body of Ornabee. He was also lying I cace downward, and was some distance off the Crawford bridle path, but was less than a quarter of a mile from the summit line for the refuge when nature awe out. His body was covered with bruises, received by failing and being dashed against the rocks by the fierce wind. He had to limbs broken, however, as stated in published reports of the occurrence.

Seully to the first wind He had no limbs broken, however, as stated in published reports of the occurrence.

Seully to the first wind He had no limbs broken, howere curris lay. An examination of the outcomed that the men had cut out a shelter in the underbrush, where they were partially protected from the elements by Mt. Monroo. The state of the count of the state of the count o last Saturday was almost incredible, and surpassed anything of the kind that I have ever witnessed. The temperature was 29 degrees, and the velocity of the wind ninety miles an hour. It blew so hard that sixty panes of glass were broken in the Summit House. The last two miles is the worst part of the journey, as there is no shelter from the woods, but only big boulders and a very rocky path. There was no snow, but as soon as the rain fell it froze on the rocks, and in some places the ice was eighteen inches thick. Mr. Curtis had left the shelter and travelled about half a mile before he succumbed, but no part of this was uphill. He was about seven miles from the base, following the Crawford path. If in their desperate plight, however, the men had essayed to go back, they might have reached the bottom by going straight down the ravine in which case they might have escaped with a few falls."

F. B. ligen, who went with Curtis and Ormsbee on the tour, said that he left them at a clock on Saturday morning, as he wished to make an ascent of the Twin Mountains. The others took the morning train for the Crawford House, with the intention of ascending Mount Willard and then going up the bridle path to join the Appalachians at the summit of Mount Washington. He said yesterday that he felt no real anxiety when his companions did not join him, as he tru-ted to their experience as mountain climbers to pull them through. The places where the men fell were marked with storm cairns, and it was nearly 6 o clock on Monday evening before Curtis's remains arrived at the Summit House.

The father of Ormsbee took charge of his body on its arrival and it was conveyed to bis residence at 183 Joralemon street, Brooklyn. The funeral services will take place at the house in which young Ormsbee was born. The original intention with regard to Curtis's funeral will be adhered to and the services conducted at 10 o'clock tr-morrow morning under the direction of the Fresh Air Club. LAWN TENNIS Hall Beaten by Ward in the Middle States

Another surprise greated the players in the Middle States championship lawn tennis tournament at Orange yesterday afternoon when Hall, who beat Larned on Tuesday, was defeated in straight sets by Holcomb Ward. It was a great day for the Harvard contingent, for Wright beat Paret in the morning, Davis beat Stevens in the afternoon and Ward won from Hali. These three Harvard experts, with Clothier of Philadelphia, who is outclassed, are left to play in the semi-finals this afternoon. Davis plays Wright and Ward meets Clothier. The finals will take place tomorrow, and the winner, probably Davis, will face Champion Whitman, another Harvard crack, for the championship. In yesterday's match, Ward's twist services and fast volleying attack were too much for and fast volleying attack were too much for Hall, who was fairly carried off his feet in the first set, and could not recover in the second soon enough to win. Wright had an easier victory over Paret, playing almost perfect tennis, while Stevens found Davis's speed too much for him. The scores follow:
